REASONS FOR DECISION

1. Service connection for erectile dysfunction (also claimed as penile condition) as secondary to the service-connected disability of post-traumatic stress disorder and obstructive sleep apnea. Service connection for erectile dysfunction.

Service connection may be granted for a disease or injury which resulted from a service-connected disability or was aggravated thereby. The evidence does not show that erectile dysfunction is related to the service-connected condition of post-traumatic stress disorder, nor is there any evidence of this disability during military service.
